European Union Ambassadors attend briefing at the Ministry of Foreign Affairs

On 23 August, many EU Ambassadors attended the briefing on the Ethiopian political situation for diplomats in Europe and Americas.

Ambassadors expressed concern on violence and excessive use of force, massive arrests, blocking of internet. They called for accountability, opening of a political space and addressing of the root causes of protests. They encouraged dialogue with all stakeholders and engagement with the UN on human rights issues.

Afar people protests, #AfarProtests 29 August 2016 and solidarty with #OromoProtests

De senaste månaderna har otaliga kvinnor, män och barn dött i Etiopien. Ännu fler har fängslats. Detta för att de valde att inte blunda för de orättvisor som pågår. Detta för att de valde att säga ifrån när människor behandlas illa. De senaste dagarna har Facebook fyllts av bilder som denna, människor som visar sin heder för alla de som inte längre är bland oss. Vi fotograferas med händerna korsade, en symbol för att om några av oss fängslas för att ha krävt att mänskliga rättigheter respekteras, är vi alla fängslade med dem! Vi måste säga ifrån när människor mister livet för att helt enkelt ha brytt sig om varandra! Låt oss fylla internet med bilder som denna. Tagga dem med #OromoProtestsoch #AmharaRistance. Det visar att du står med Oromofolket, Amharafolket och alla etiopiens folk som i årtionden förtryckts av den etiopiska regimen. Visa att du bryr dig. Om vi alla gör något litet blir det tillsammans något stort. Tack!

Ethiotelecom has lost at least 30 million birr in potential revenue as a result of yesterday's hacking that enabled customers to make free call domestically and international. The company is now trying to recover its loss by billing customers although it mostly provides prepaid service. Looking at the bills it is been sending, the loss could be way higher than the above estimate.

(Yahoo Sports) Ethiopian marathoner makes political protest at finish line

August 21, 2016t

August 21, 2016

By Kevin Kaduk

(Getty Images)

(Yahoo Sports) — With the eyes of the world upon him, Ethiopian marathonerFeyisa Lilesaused the stage of Sunday's Olympic marathon to daringly protest his own government back home.

As he neared the finish line and a silver medal, Lilesa raised his arms to form an 'X'. The gesture is a peaceful protest made by the Oromo people, the largest ethnic group in Ethiopia and one that is facing a brutal response to widespread protests that began late last year.

Human Rights Watch estimated in June that 400 people have been killed and thousands more injured as the government attempted to stop the estimated 500 protests that the Oromo people staged to draw attention to systemic persecution by the government.

Lilesa is from Oromia, which is home to a large majority of the country's 35 million Oromo. He didn't back down from the protest after the race either, flashing the sign for cameras as a press conference and pledging to do it again during Sunday night's closing ceremony.

Rule 50 of the Olympic charter bans political displays or protests and the American duo of Tommie Smith and John Carlos was famously stripped of its medals after the pair flashed the black power salute on the medal stand at the 1968 Summer Games.

Web2PDF
converted by Web2PDFConvert.com

Lilesa, however, has bigger things to worry about than just losing a medal as such dissent puts his life in real danger if he returns to Ethiopia.

#OromoProtests 19 August 2016: U.S. State Department issues travel alert over Ethiopia protests. Reuters

The U.S. State Department issued a travel alert for Ethiopia on Friday 19 August 2016 over anti-government protests.

"Protests are likely to continue, and could spread to other parts of the country, including the capital, Addis Ababa," the State Department said in a statement. The embassy said disruptions and internet services have hampered its ability to communicate with American citizens.

Aljazeera Inside Story – What is triggering Ethiopia's unrest?

August 14, 2016 in

Calls for an international investigation in Ethiopia have surfaced after more than 100 people were killed in demonstrations.It is a conflict that has led to 400 deaths since November, 100 of them in the last week alone, according to human rights groups.The Ethiopian government is cracking down on ethnic Oromos and Amharas, who are calling for political reforms.Human rights groups have called the reponse ruthless. And the United Nations wants to send international observers to investigate.Ethiopia has denied that request, saying it alone is responsible for the security of its citizens. But what can be done to ensure the Ethiopian government respects human rights?Presenter: Folly Bah ThibaultGuests:Getachew Reda – Ethiopian communications affairs minister.Felix Horne – Ethiopia reseracher for Human Rights Watch.Ezekiel Gebissa – Profesor of History and African studies at Kettering University.– Subscribe to our channel: http://aje.io/AJSubscribe– Follow us on Twitter:https://twitter.com/AJEnglish– Find us on Facebook:https://www.facebook.com/aljazeera– Check our website: http://www.aljazeera.com

BBC: Oromo community calls for more protests in Ethiopia

Emmanuel Igunza

BBC Africa, Nairobi

Posted at11:43

Activists from Ethiopia's largest ethnic group, the Oromo, have called for more anti-government protests this weekend, days after thousands of demonstrators took to the streets in the northern city of Gondar.

converted by Web2PDFConvert.com

Activists say that hundreds have been killed in a security crackdown

They say they will hold countrywide protests against what they describe as continued killings and other abuses by the authorities.

In the latest incident earlier this week, at least six people were allegedly shot dead by police in the eastern town of Awaday.

Prime minister Hailemariam Desalegn warned on Tuesday that Ethiopia was sliding towards ethnic conflict similar to that in neighbouring countries.

Ethiopia's second largest ethnic group, the Amhara, held a large demonstration last Sunday in Gondar.

The ruling Ethiopian People's Revolutionary Democratic Front has been in power since 1991 and won all seats in parliament in last year's elections.
